

Summer School on Human Rights, Minorities and Diversity Governance

How to reach Bolzano/Bozen

By plane

The nearest international airports are Innsbruck (Austria) and Verona (Italy). Other airports you can fly to are Bologna, Milan, Venice and Munich (Germany). From these airports, you can travel to Bolzano/Bozen by shuttle bus, by train or by car. On the websites of these airports, you can find the information regarding the bus transfer to/from railway stations. See also the information below.

By bus and/or train

Bolzano/Bozen can be reached easily from Munich (Germany) and Innsbruck (Austria) as well as from Verona, Bologna, Venice and Milan (Italy). Bus shuttles from the airports to Bolzano can be booked online at <https://www.altoadigebus.com> and <http://www.busgroup.eu/en>. Flixbus runs buses from various German, Austrian and Italian cities to Bolzano/Bozen. More information and timetables on <https://www.flixbus.com>. The railway connections are the following:

From north:

From Munich, Eurocity-trains run every two hours during the day directly to South Tyrol (via Innsbruck). More Information and timetables on www.bahn.de.

From Innsbruck, there are several daily regional trains Bolzano/Bozen. Information and timetables on www.oebb.at. More information on the public regional transport in South Tyrol at <http://www.sii.bz.it>.

From east:

From Vienna via Villach to Lienz (Austria), by regional trains further to South Tyrol. Information and timetables on www.oebb.at. More information on the public regional transport in South Tyrol at <http://www.sii.bz.it>.

From south:

Fast train connections from Rome (direct train 5 times a day), Bologna (direct trains), Milan and Venice (changing in Verona) to Bolzano/Bolzano. More information and timetables on www.trenitalia.com.

From west:

From Switzerland through Innsbruck or Milan to Bolzano/Bozen. More information on www.sbb.ch.

By car

From north:

Coming from Munich you take the direction to Innsbruck (A12 Inntalautobahn) via Rosenheim and Kufstein. At Innsbruck you follow the motorway A 13 (Brenner autobahn) until you reach the Brennerpass, there the motorway passes into the Italian Brennerautobahn (A22). The first bigger village in South Tyrol is Vipiteno/Sterzing.

From west:

Via Ulm - Kempten - Füssen - Fernpass and Imst you reach Landeck. You take the Passo Resia/Reschenpass-state road and reach the Val Venosta/Vinschgau in South Tyrol.

Coming from Bregenz you reach South Tyrol via Feldkirch - Arlberg - Landeck and the Passo Resia/Reschenpass.

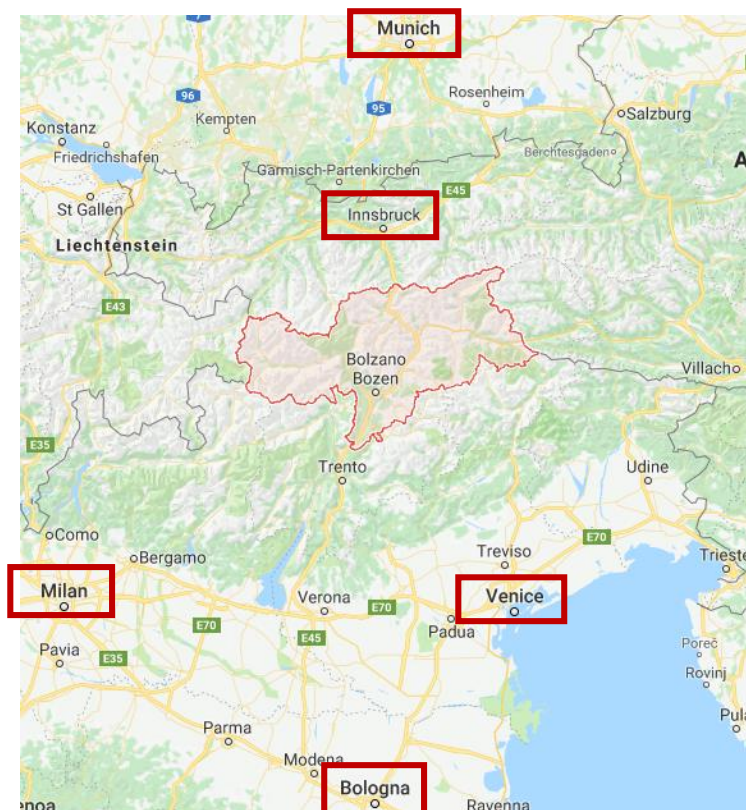

Coming from Switzerland you also can reach South Tyrol via Zürich - Landquart - Klosters - Vereinatunnel - Zernez and the Ofenpass.

From east:

Via Klagenfurt - Lienz - Innichen you take the state road of Val Pusteria/Pustertal.

From south:

If you come from Rome, Milan or Venice you have to follow the direction to Verona. There you take the motorway A22 (Brennerautobahn) and reach South Tyrol via Trento.

From Bolzano/Bozen you can reach South Tyrol's valleys, towns and villages by train and/or bus. Information on the public regional transport in South Tyrol at <http://www.sii.bz.it>